The Secret of Lonesome Cove

By
Samuel Hopkins Adams

Copyright, 1912, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"Yes. All you've got to do is to go and ask for 'em. You won't need me."
"Regrettable as his bad taste is," said Kent with a solemn face, "I fear that Dr. Breed doesn't regard me with that confidence and esteem which one reads of in illuminated resolutions."
"And you want me as an accelerator, eh?" smiled the lawyer. "All right.
It's the Jane Doe permit you're after.
I suppose."
"Which?"
"Jane Doe. They buried the corpse from Lonesome Cove under that name.
Unidentified dead, you know."

CHAPTER XII. Loose Ends.

TOGETHER they went to the medical officer's quarters. Dr.
Breed had come in fifteen minutes before. Without preliminary Lawyer Bain said:
"I want to see that Jane Doe certificate again."
"Aren't you afraid of wearin' out the ink on it, Adam?" retorted the other, with a furtive grin.
"And I," said Chester Kent in his sunniest manner, "venture to trouble you to show me the certificate in the case of Wilfrid Blair." Something like a spasm shook the limbs of Dr. Breed's meager face.
"Blair!" he repeated. "How did you know?" He stopped short.
"How did I know that Wilfrid Blair is dead?" Kent finished for him. "Why, there has been time enough, hasn't there?"
The physician's hands clawed nervously at his straggling hair.
"Time enough?" he murmured. "Time enough? I'm only just back from the Blair place myself."
"Ah," commented Kent negligently.
"Then he died within two hours or so?"
"This morning," retorted the other.
"It's all in the certificate."
"All?" inquired Kent, so significantly that Lawyer Bain gave him a quick look.
"All that's your business or anybody else's," said Breed, recovering himself a bit.
"Doubtless. And I'm to be permitted to see this document?" Breed pushed a paper across the table.
"There it is. I just finished making it out."
"I see," said Kent, giving the paper a scant survey. "That the cause of death is set down as 'cardiac failure.'" "Well, what's the matter with that?"
"Just a trifle noncommittal, isn't it?
You see, we all die of cardiac failure,

"That record's good enough for the law."
except those of us who fall from airships."
"That record's good enough for the law," declared the medical officer doggedly.
"Who was the attending physician?"
"I was."
"Indeed! And to what undertaker was the permit issued?"
"It was issued to the family. They can turn it over to what undertaker they please."
"Where is the interment to be?"
"Say, looky here, Mr. Man!" cried the physician, breaking into the sudden whining fury of hard pressed timidity. "Are you trying to learn me my business? You can go to the devil!
That's what you can do!"
"With your signature on my certificate?" inquired the scientist, unmoved. "I won't trouble you so far, Dr.
Breed. I thank you."
Outside in the street, Lawyer Bain turned to his client. "You didn't look at the Jane Doe paper at all."
"No. I'm not so interested in that as in the other."
"Something queer about this Blair death? Not another murder?"

Hopkins County Court IN THE MATTER OF ESTABLISHMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF EARL- INGTON GRADED COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICT— (Colored)

This being the next regular term of the Hopkins County Court after the receipt and filing herein of the petition of J. W. Bell and eleven other legal voters and tax payers within the city of Earlington, a city of the fifth class in Hopkins county, the said petition coming on for hearing it is now ordered by the Court that the boundary of the proposed Earlington Graded Common School District, colored, be fixed pursuant to the agreement of the County Judge, the petitioners and the County Board of Education of Hopkins County, Kentucky, as follows:

Said proposed district shall comprise and be the same as the territory embraced in the Earlington graded common school district which is identical with the boundaries of former consolidated sub-districts Nos. 45 and 48 the boundaries of each of which are as follows:

Sub-district No. 45 begins at the N. end of S. R. Nisbet's lane on the Madisonville and Earlington road; thence E. to the end of his cross lane; thence S. to the fork of the White Plains and Hopkinsville roads; so as to exclude A. J. Sisk's farm; thence with the Hopkinsville road to the crossing of the L. & N.
R. R.; thence on a straight line so as to include Elias Oldham's farm and Riffs Oldham's farm; thence to include Sam and Hiram Oldham's farms; thence to the N. W. corner of the survey of the town of Ear-lington; thence with said line to the N. E. corner; thence to the Thomas Davis' place and to Polk Merrill's place, including them; thence on a straight line to the beginning.

Sub-district No. 48, beginning at the N. E. corner of the corporate line of the town of Earlington; thence to Thos. Davis' place and the Polk Merrill place, excluding them; thence with the meanderings of the Hunting Branch to the Rock Ford or Clear Creek; thence to the Steve Robinson house; thence to Dock Oriffin's; thence to N. W. corner of the corporation line of the town of Earlington; thence to the beginning.

The Sheriff of Hopkins County is directed to open a poll within said proposed graded common school district on Tuesday, September 8th, 1914, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal colored voters in said graded common school district on the proposition whether or not they will vote an annual tax of not exceeding fifty cents on each One Hundred Dollars of property assessed within said proposed common school district belonging to colored voters, and a poll tax of not exceeding $1.50 per capita on each colored male inhabitant over 21 years of age residing in said proposed graded common school district, being both an ad valorem and a poll tax, for the purpose of maintaining a common graded school in said proposed graded common school district and for erecting, purchasing and repairing suitable buildings therefor if necessary. The court finds as a fact that the proposition to establish said graded common school district and school has been and is approved in writing on the petition by Paul M.
Moore, the trustee of the common school district and the only common school district included within or affected by the boundary of the proposed graded common school district, and has been approved in writing on said petition by the County Superintendent of Common Schools; that the proposed school house in said district is the school house in present use by the Earlington colored school district, within the city of Earlington, with the lot upon which the same is situated, the same being located one block west of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and one block north of Main Street in Earlington, Kentuc-

Claude Morton UNDERTAKER

Center St. Madisonville, Ky ky, and that on point of the boundary of said proposed graded common school district is more than 2 1/2 miles from the site of said proposed school house.

It shall be the duty of the County Court Clerk of Hopkins County to give to the Sheriff of said County a certified copy of this order as it appears on the order book, within ten days after the entry thereof, and it shall be the duty of said Sheriff to to have this order published in the "Earlington Bee" published at Ear-lington, Kentucky, for at least 20 days before the election, and also to advertise the same by printed or written hand bills posted at five conspicuous places in said proposed graded common school district for the same length of time, the said notices to be written and posted withing ten days after receiving this copy of this order and at least 20 days before said election. Said Sheriff shall appoint a Judge and a Clerk of the said election, who shall take and subscribe an oath for the faithful performance of their duties respectively, on the day set apart for the election said officers shall open a poll and shall propound to each colored voter who shall vote the Question "Are you for or against the graded common school ax?" and his vote shall be recorded for or against the same as he may direct. At the same time and place there shall be elected a board of five trustees for said graded common school district by the same persons who vote for the election of the tax, and the five persons receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected trust. Said officers of election shall certify to the court the result of said election as soon as the same is ascertained, and this cause is continued.

Copy attested:
JNO. G. SALMON, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that I, as Sheriff of Hopkins County, Ky., will on Tuesday, September 8, 1914, cause a poll to be opened and an election to be held at the colored public school building in the city of Earlington, Kentucky, for the purposes named in the foregoing judgment and order of the Hopkins Co.
Court.

Given under my hand as Sheriff, Hopkins County, Ky., this 2nd day of July 1914.

TOM LOGAN,
Sheriff Hopkins County.

MANY TEACHERS ARE IN EUROPE

American Schools and Colleges Will Have to Postpone Opening

New York, Aug. 10.—Causing the greatest consternation among educational authorities, but great joy to young America, the European war threatens to cause a postponement of the opening of schools throughout the country.

Advices received here indicate that hundreds of American school teachers are marooned in France, Germany, England and other European countries now in a state of war. Those in Germany have but small chance of getting out, possibly for months. It is virtually certain that so long as Germany is engaged in war they will not be able to leave, except at the greatest risk.

Colleges also report that scores of professors are among the Americans marooned on the Continent. Columbia and other New York Universities will be seriously hampered unless conditions in Europe soon become more favorable.

smiled. "No," said he positively.
"certainly not that."
"There has been a lot of scandal about young Blair, I'm told. Perhaps they're burying him as quietly as possible just to keep out of the papers."
"I shouldn't consider his method of burial likely to prove particularly quiet," returned Kent. "Of course I may be wrong, but I think not. The most private way to get buried is in public."
"Well, if a death was crooked I'd want no better man than Breed to help cover it. By the way, the sheriff has been away since yesterday afternoon on some business that he kept to himself."
"That also may mean something," remarked Kent thoughtfully. "Now, if you'll find out about that newspaper matter I'll go on over to Sedgwick's.
You can get me there by telephone."
In the studio Kent found Sedgwick walking up and down with his hands behind his back and his head forward.
"Why the caged lion effect?" inquired the scientist.
"Some one has been having a little fun with me," growled Sedgwick.
"Apparently it was one sided.
What's this on the easel?"
"What would you take it to be?"
"Let's have a closer look."
Walking across the room Kent planted himself in front of the drawing board, upon which had been fixed, by means of thumb tacks, a square of rather soft white paper, exhibiting evidence of having been crumpled up and subsequently smoothed out. On the paper was a three-quarter drawing of a woman's head, the delicate face beneath waves of short curly hair, turned a little from the left shoulder, which was barely indicated.
Setting his useful monocle in his eye, Kent examined the work carefully.
"I should take it," he pronounced at length, "to be a sort of a second hand attempt at a portrait."
"You recognize it, though?"
"It bears a resemblance to the face of the corpse at Lonesome Cove. Where did that precious work of art come from?"
"Heaven knows! Ching Lung found the sketch lying on the doorstep with a cobblestone holding it down."
"It isn't a sketch."
"What would you call it, then?"
"A copy. If you had used your eyes on it instead of your temper, you might have seen at once that it is a tracing. Look for yourself, now." Taking the magnifying monocle that Kent held out, the artist scrutinized the lines of the picture.
"By Jove! You're right," said he.
"It's been transferred through tracing paper and touched up afterward.
Rather roughly too. You can see where the copyist has borne down too hard on the lead."
"What's your opinion of the likeness

"If it is the likeness which you suppose?" inquired Kent.
"Why, as I remember the woman this picture is a good deal idealized.
The hair and the eyes are much the same. But the lines of the face in the picture are finer. The chin and mouth are more delicate, and the whole effect softer and of a higher type."
"Do you see anything strange about the neck on the left side?"
"Badly drawn; that's all."
"Just below the ear there is a sort of blankness, isn't there?"
"Why, yes. It seems curiously unfinished just there."
"If you were touching it up how would you correct that?"
"With a slight shading just there where the neck muscle should be thrown up a bit by the turn of the head."
"Or by introducing a large pendant earring which the copier has left out?"
"Kent, you're a wonder! That would do it exactly. But why in the name of all that's marvelous should the tracer of this drawing leave out the earring?"
"Obviously to keep the picture as near like as possible to the body on the bench."
"Then you don't think it is the woman of the beach?"
"No; I don't."
"Who else could it possibly be?"
"Perhaps we can best find that out by discovering who left the drawing here."
"That looks like something of a job."
"Not very formidable, I think. Suppose we run up to the village and ask the local stationer who has bought any tracing paper there within a day or two."
As the demand for tracing paper in Martindale Center was small, the stationer upon being called on had no difficulty in recalling that Elder Dennett had been in that afternoon and made such a purchase.
"Then he must have discovered something after I left him," said Kent to Sedgwick. "for he never could have kept his secret if he'd had it then."
"But what motive could he have?"
cried the artist.
"Just mischief probably. That's enough motive for his sort." Turning to the storekeeper, Kent added, "Do you happen to know how Mr. Dennett spent the early part of this afternoon?"
"I surely do. He was up to Dimmock's rummage auction, and he got something there that tickled him like a feather. But he wouldn't let on what it was."
"The original!" said Sedgwick.
"What does Dimmock deal in?"
"All kinds of odds and ends. He scrapes the country for bankrupt sales and has a big auction once a year.
Everybody goes. You can find anything from a plow handle to a second hand marriage certificate at his place."
"We now call on Elder Dennett," said Kent.

That worthy was about closing up shop when they entered.
"Don't your lamp work right yet, Professor Kent?" he inquired.
"Perfectly," responded the scientist.
"We have come to see you on another matter, Mr. Sedgwick and I."
"First let me thank you," said Sedgwick, "for the curious work of art you left at my place."
"Hay-ee?" inquired the elder, with a rising infection.
"Don't take the trouble to lie about it," put in Kent. "Just show us the original of the drawing which you traced so handily."
The town gossip shifted uneasily from foot to foot. "How'd you know I got the picture?" he giggled. "I didn't find it myself till I got back from the auction."
"Never mind the process. Have you the original here?"
"Yes," said Elder Dennett; and, going to his desk, he brought back a square of heavy bluish paper, slightly discolored at the edges.
"That's a very good bit of drawing," said Sedgwick as he and Kent bent over the paper.
"But unsigned," said his companion.
"Now, Mr. Dennett, whom do you suppose this to be?"
"Why, the lady that stopped to talk with Mr. Sedgwick and was killed in Lonesome Cove."
"Then why did you leave out this earring in copying the picture?"
"Aw—well," explained the other in some confusion, "she didn't have no earrings on when I seen her, and it looks a lot more like without it."
"How much money would you take for this?"
"About $5, I guess," replied the other in a bold expulsion of breath.
At this moment Sedgwick, who had been studying the picture in the light, made a slight signal with his hand, which did not escape Kent.
"Five dollars is a big price for a rough pencil sketch," said the scientist. "I'd have to know more of the picture to pay that for it. Where did you find it?"
